

Conflict Minerals policy

To Whom It May Concern,

As part of the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act, the United States Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) passed legislation requiring U.S. listed companies to report on the origin of conflict minerals, including tin, tantalum, tungsten, and gold.

Kornit Digital Ltd. is committed to ethical practices and compliance with all applicable laws and regulations. While we do not source these metals directly, they may exist in the materials and components we procure. We are therefore committed to working with our customers and suppliers to responsibly source the materials and components we use in manufacturing our products.

To comply with the SEC reporting regulations relating to conflict minerals, Kornit Digital Ltd. requires its supply chain to provide proof of compliance that minerals are procured only from smelters and refiners that have been found to be compliant with the Responsible Minerals Assurance Process (RMAP) of the Responsible Minerals Initiative (RMI), formerly the CFSI. Once smelter lists are available, suppliers will be requested to procure materials only through validated smelters.

The process of tracing conflict minerals through the supply chain is complex. Therefore, Kornit Digital Ltd. adheres to the guidelines of the Responsible Minerals Initiative (RMI) to assist in complying with the SEC reporting requirements on conflict minerals. Additionally, Kornit Digital Ltd. refrains from using smelters or refiners from conflict-affected and high-risk areas (CAHRAs), as defined by the RMI and reported by relevant suppliers in our supply chain.

Kornit Digital Ltd.'s efforts are geared towards procuring conflict minerals from responsible sources in the DRC and CAHRAs. To this end, we have developed programs and practices intended to maintain, as necessary and appropriate, records of supplier verifications.

This policy will be reviewed periodically and updated as needed. Concerns and violations of this policy can be reported to Kornit Digital's Board of Directors, its non-executive members, or its subcommittees through our official grievance channels, By mail to the following address – mailto: Nir.gonen@kornit.com

Yours sincerely,
